NATIONAL FRONT Party of the Future

LABOUR PARTY LEADER, Neil Kinnock is shaping future Labour Party policy with an eye firmly focused on the National Front and the support the NF is beginning to pick up in areas that are traditionally Labour Party strongholds.

Kinnock, who had been a life-long supporter of Proportional Representation, has, in the last 18 months changed his mind because of the benefits this fairer voting system would give the National Front. It should seem unbelievable that possibly Britain's next Prime Minister is formulating Labour Party policy just to suppress the electoral chances of the National Front - But it's true!

In an interview for Labour News, his sole reason for not supporting resolutions in support of PR at the Labour Conference was that "it would give credibility to the National

Days later in an interview with The Independent again Kinnock returned to the National Front. "We must be sure that the National Front does not gain influence", he told their Political Editor, Colin Brown.

Then three days later he is at it again in the Sunday Times trying to justify his changed stance on PR by warning of the growth of the NF, "In France, the National Front has significant influence by managing to get through the electoral door via proportional representation. It will happen here, in Britain if we allow it".

The Labour Party has kept tabs on the NF since 1977 and the infamous Labour Party TV broadcast which was 15 minutes of peak viewing time totally about the NF. After the 1979 General Election and the Front's internal problems of the early and mid 80's, Labour Party Frontwatchers where signalling an end of the Party. Now in the last two years things have changed and they have now warned Kinnock not to take the

... and Neil Kinnock is in Agreement!

NF lightly.

The mood of the country is right for a National Front revival. Just one good election result and the NF could suddenly be back in business. And that's where the Front and Neil Kinnock agree - If the National Front gets that electoral breakthrough they will be the party of the Future!

• KINNOCK: He knows that as he gains support from yuppies and the ethnic minorities, he loses the votes of the British Working Class.

BOB TENNEY: A gritty Yorkshireman who will be offering the British people of Bradford the chance to vote for a better future.

HOPING FOR a good election result in Bradford North is National Front candidate Bob Tenney. Chairman of the Hull Branch of the National Front, Bob is a gritty Yorkshireman who has been building up contacts in Bradford since his adoption last month.

His campaign will be based on what the people of Bradford want for their future. Bob Bulldog Bob: For a Better Bradford!

Tenney told The FLAG

"Bradford Metropolitan District provides ethnic statistics for schools up to 1983. If current trends continue, a third of pupils will be non-European by 1991 and half by 2004. Most of these are concentrated in Bradford City, where over half the pupils will be non-European before the end of the century. If that is what the people of Bradford want then they must carry on voting Tory, Labour or Liberal. If they want Bradford returned to the British people then they should vote National Front".

Yorkshire Regional Organiser, Peter Taylor, is in charge of the campaign and while being aware of the massive task awaiting them in a city the Asian community regard as their own, he believes with a good campaign the National Front vote could surprise the pundits.

Campaign workers are needed in Bradford and any Yorkshire NF members and supporters who can help should contact Peter Taylor on 0532-521982.

EASTBOURNE

At the other end of the country, NF campaign workers were out in force in Eastbourne on Saturday 29th September. Led by candidate John McAuley and Election Agent Tom Acton, more than 20 NF activists, sold papers and gave out leaflets in the Sussex seaside resort. A loudspeaker van covered in Vote McAuley posters toured the constituency informing voters of National Front policy.

ROUGH JUSTICE

MAGISTRATES in Britain are more likely to jail White people rather than Black. Researchers who were investigating claims that 'racist' magistrates were sending more Blacks to prison found in reality it was exactly the opposite.

7.4% of White defendants were jailed compared with 6.6% Afro-Caribbean and 5.8% Asian.

A spokesman said the figures were disappointing because it didn't explain why there was such a high proportion of Blacks in Prison. He denounced as 'racist' the possibility that the reason was that they just committed more crimes!

More Common Market Madness

BRITAIN'S centuries-old hallmark system for gold and silver is under threat from the EEC.

Brussels bureaucrats want the system scrapped and the manufacturer responsible for guaranteeing the products precious metal content.

Hallmarking has been in existence for 300 years and gives the purchasers of gold and silver the assurance of knowing exactly what they have bought. To leave the manufacturer to guarantee the quantity of gold in his product is like putting a poacher in charge of a game reserve!

This is Common Market Madness at its best.

The Shape of Things to Come.

THE PAKISTANI Welfare Association in Nelson, Lancs, has been put in charge of distributing coupons entitling those on income support and similar benefits to cut price butter.

A council spokesman was at pains to point out that this didn't mean that the cut-price butter, available during September, was restricted to members of the Asian Community.

The Land of Milk & Honey

NEARLY 16,000 people sought refugee status in Britain last year.

This was more than ten times the number in 1979.

Out on a Limb!

BRAVE military policeman Andy Mudd, who lost his legs in an IRA bombing, has fought for months to walk on artificial limbs.

Now officialdom has told him he could lose his £26.50 per week disability allowance if he succeeds.

How absurd. How heartless. The bureaucrats say they are bound by the rules.

The National Front says "SO CHANGE THE RULES".

Surprise, Surprise!

A COURT in the Israeli city of Haifa has convicted a messianic Jew of desecrating 303 Jewish graves.

David Goldner, 41, admitted that he spray-painted the graves with anti-Jewish slogans in the hope that Arabs would be suspected and the Jews would unite against the Arabs.

Goldner told reporters that he was fulfilling a sacred mission.

The conviction of Goldner received little coverage in the Western media despite the desecration receiving wide publicity when it was thought it had been perpetrated by Arabs.

After 30 Years TB is a Threat Again in Britain!

THE INFLUX of thousands of Hong Kong immigrants into Britain will mean a big increase in the number of tuberculosis cases.

Tuberculosis is up to thirty times more prevalent in Hong Kong than in Britain and British services will be hard pressed to cope.

The disease which was on the decline in Britain 30 years ago is now on the increase because of the TB brought into the country by immigrants from the Indian sub-continent. At present cases within the UK are three times more common among ethnic minorities than the indigenous population.

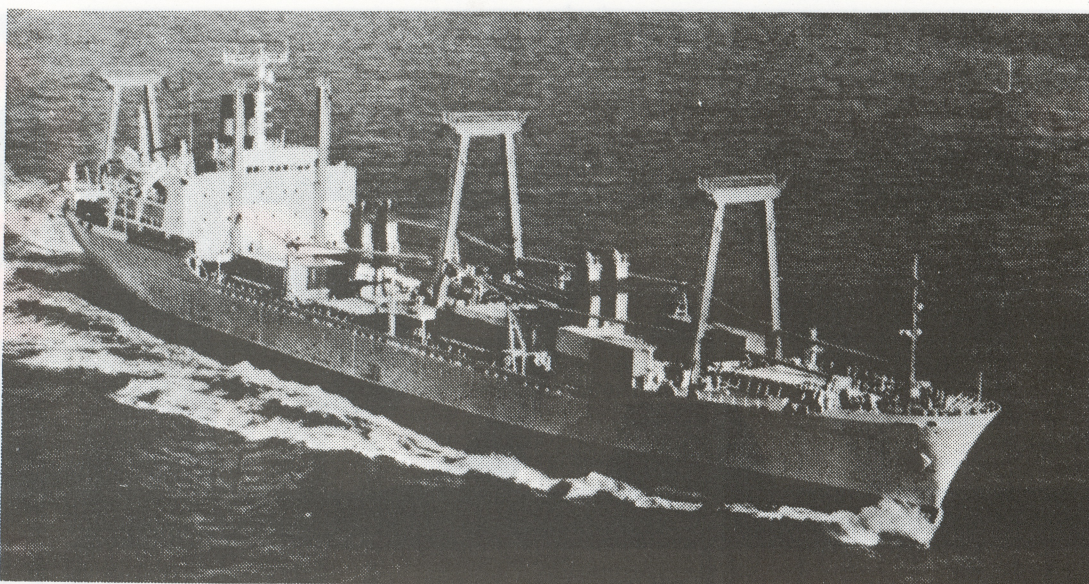

MAJOR PUTS THIRD WORLD FIRST!

WHILE BRITONS are evicted from their homes because they can't meet higher mortgage payments caused by the increase in interest rate, foreigners in other countries are being let off debts by our Government.

The very same banks and building societies that have the bailiffs around evicting destitute British families from their homes within minutes of deadlines being passed, have just agreed to write off £500 million in debts to African Third World countries.

Britain's Chancellor, John Major, who proposed the debt write-off at a Commonwealth Finance Conference said the countries needed more funds and time to see them over this difficult period.

It's a pity he doesn't feel the same away over British families facing poverty because of his high interest rates!

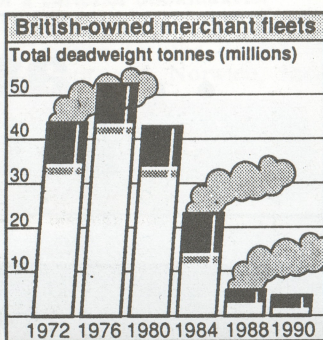

● ON THE WAY OUT: Our Merchant Navy faces extinction unless drastic measures are taken.

Front Pledge on Merchant Navy

BRITAIN'S MERCHANT Navy is on its last legs. It is so small now that it is even unable to supply Britain's forces out in the Gulf, and the Government is bankrupt of any ideas how to stop the decline.

In 1971 there were 2,386 ships in the Merchant Navy. Today there are just 537 with more than 300 of these flying the flag of convenience.

In 1971 82% of all British exports were carried on British ships. Today it is just 20%.

In 1976 there were 33,314 officers and 25,019 ratings serving. Today there is just 7,892 officers and 9,946 ratings.

All Transport Secretary Cecil Parkinson had to offer the beleaguered service was foreign officers at a cut price to ease chronic shortages.

The National Front would revitalise the Merchant Navy.

* Flags of convenience would be outlawed and British goods would only be allowed to be carried on British ships.

* A programme for building more Merchant ships would be implemented with orders placed at British shipyards.

* Only British seamen would be allowed to serve on British vessels and a massive recruitment programme would be launched for officers and ratings with increments suiting the importance of their job.

* The Channel Tunnel would be filled in and Britain's dockyards streamlined.

Britain needs its Merchant Navy and unless action is taken now the tradition and expertise that has been its hallmark in the past will be lost forever.

KEEPING THE BRAINS IN BRITAIN!

UNIVERSITY graduates are leaving Britain in droves, many within six months of graduation.

They are lured by better paid jobs, better conditions and better chances for advancement offered by other countries.

TREND

More than 2,500 British graduates left the country last year, an increase of 20% on the previous 12 months. Although this represents just 4.2% of the 60,000 graduates, it is still a worrying trend because nothing is being done to reverse it.

BENEFITING

A National Front Government would provide the incentives to keep the 'Brains of Britain, in Britain', but would also make sure graduates who were educated in Britain by British expertise, served at least a ten-year period in Britain benefiting the country that had educated them.

EMPHASISING THE DIVIDE IN ACCRINGTON!

THE USE of children as political pawns is something very foreign to our shores. It was seen on the television with Saddam Hussein and more recently on the streets of Accrington in Lancashire.

The Asian community in Accrington are used to getting their own way, and couldn't believe it when Hyndburn Council, turned down their application for a Muslim Language School at a terraced house in Higher Antley Street.

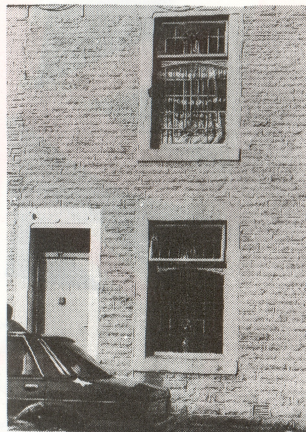

At first they thought the refusal was some sort of clerical error and that there had been some mix-up with applications. They immediately re-applied. When a council official explained that a terraced house was totally unsuitable to be used as a school, the Asians, together with their children took to the streets.

During the rush-hour the children were used to block traffic on the busy Richmond Hill Road causing a massive hold-up, and untold problems for the police. They chanting Asian slogans and sang Asian songs and it was more than an hour before they agreed to Police requests to move on.

Using children in demonstrations encourages those children to flout authority. It brings them up to believe that to get your own way you must show force.

Such a mentality is totally alien to Britain, and therefore such demonstrations do serve a purpose. A Hyndburn council official summed it up nicely. "Putting children in the middle of the road when people are trying to drive home is stupid. It can only antagonise other local people".

In other words put the backs up of the British people and further define the cultural and racial differences in our society!

● The terrace house in Higher Antley Street, Accrington.

● Directors of Klienwort Benson advising on the privatisation of Electricity

AIDING AND ABETTING

The Great Electricity Rip-Off

IT'S NOT only a crime to sell the family silver when it's not yours to sell, it is also a crime to pay vast sums to 'receivers' to help you with the theft.

Privatisation is the selling off of Britain's assets at a knock down price for short term gain by a Government desperately trying to balance its books. It's the country's essential services that are being hawked off to private business who asset strip the industry and provide the minimum service possible, while making the British people pay through the nose for it. It happened with BT, Gas, Water and now it's happening to electricity.

But not only is a British essential service being hawked off on the cheap. But the British people are going to have to fork out £450,000,000 to the Tories' chums in the City to implement the sell-off.

The British people will be paying £50 million for those boring adverts night after night - with gas it was Sid, with electricity it is Frank. Nearly £200 million will go to the banks handling the issue with another hundred million to insurers as security against the Gulf Crisis affecting the share price.

Water, Gas and Electricity are essential services. They should belong to the British people and be administered by the representatives of the British people. To put them in the hands of private individuals and companies, in many cases foreign individuals and companies who have no allegiance to Britain or her people is at best bad government - at worst it is treason!

FRENCH LESSONS

MORE BRITISH companies will face foreign takeovers in the next few years than ever before, a new European Takeover Guide predicts.

British companies are vulnerable to asset-stripping takeovers because most of the shares of companies quoted on the Stock Exchange, are owned by financial institutions who as long as they get the right price don't care who buys the shares.

In Britain the Government stands by to allow foreign predators to gobble up British companies. In France it is different.

The French limit foreign takeovers to the bare minimum by having a thorough processing procedure with regard to foreign bids for French Firms. By the time the foreign takeover bid has been cleared another French firm has stepped in to keep the company under threat in French hands.

Why isn't our Government protecting British companies in the same way?

RESEARCH AIRFIELDS SOLD OFF

THE MINISTRY of Defence is selling off two of its remaining three research airfields.

Airfields at Bedford and Farnborough will come under the auctioneers hammer.

The sell-off will mean the end of the Farnborough Air Show which, because of EEC pressure, will be moved to central Europe and become a European Show.

The Ministry of Defence admitted that the closures would mean job losses and a further loss of status for Britain in the field of aeroplane research.

Cowards of the County

Coach Firm Picketed for betraying our Servicemen

LAST MONTH saw Plymouth National Front hold a demonstration outside the offices of coach company Wallace Arnold protesting about their decision not to carry uniformed British Servicemen following recent IRA atrocities.

DISGUST

Within days of learning about this act of surrenders Plymouth NF had hundreds of leaflets printed expressing their disgust with this cowardice. Public opinion was almost 100% behind the National Front in their stand against IRA terrorism.

Press releases were faxed out to the Plymouth Evening Herald and the Sunday Independent including a copy of the leaflet.

No Surrender to IRA Terror

Wallace Arnold Are Beneath Contempt

At a time when more and more people are being targeted by IRA death squads, it is a source of shame that a Plymouth coach company should surrender to the IRA by heeding their ultimatum. Servicemen can only be despised for cowardice and weakness - as Wallace Arnold has shown by his cowardly surrender to the IRA. Therefore, they should be known as Yellow Arnold!

Yellow Arnold director Stephen Barber made a pathetic attempt to justify the decision by saying, "We are not a political company and have no wish to be a party to the game of military against Terrorist organisations" (quoted in the Evening Herald 6.8.90). Doesn't he realise there can be no neutral position between the armed forces and the IRA? Failure to support our servicemen against the IRA is tantamount to giving encouragement to the IRA campaign and its treacherous supporters on the far left is the cowardly. Can anyone imagine a similar cowardice during the second world war anyone acting in such a manner would have been hanged.

The National Front calls on all loyal Britons to boycott Wallace Arnold. Our service men risk their lives for us, the least we can do is back them when the going gets rough. DON'T GIVE IN TO IRA TERRORISM AND DON'T GIVE YOUR CUSTOM TO COMPANIES THAT PANDER TO THE ENEMY.

Smear Campaign Starts in Bristol

NATIONAL FRONT CHAIRMAN, Ian Anderson's candidature for Bristol East at the next General Election has prompted a hysterical response from Tory and Labour politicians in the city as well as the oh-so predictable smear campaign against the NF.

Tory MP for Bristol East the not-so-English sounding Jonathan Sayeed said the NF were "Deliberately trying to raise tensions and conflict between British people and the immigrants". While Labour candidate Jean Corston said the Front were standing because of "the large number of ethnic minorities who live in the area".

The rattled comments of Sayeed and Corston, however gave way to a more sinister attack on the National Front when Bristol Evening Post reporter Kevan Blackadder, claimed in an article that the National Front were responsible for an arson attack on a house where three black brothers were living.

Bristol NF immediately responded by writing to the Editor of Bristol Evening Post to deny the accusations. No letter was published nor did the Editor acknowledge the letter. Phone calls to the paper resulted in the caller being cut off and on one occasion Blackadder slammed the phone down.

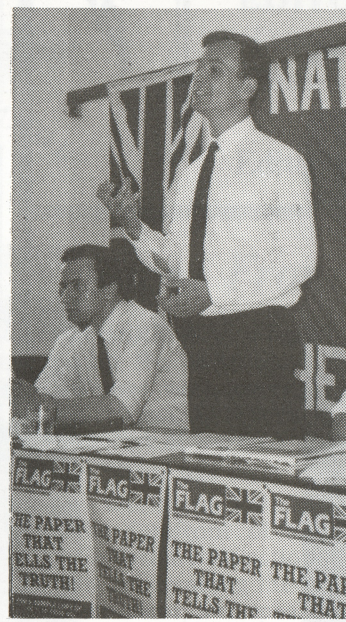

Not to be deterred the Committee of Bristol National Front wrote to the Chief Constable of Avon. He put them in contact with the officer dealing with the case.

The officer said that the Police were not looking for anyone else with regard to the attack and he admitted surprise at the article in the paper.

Bristol NF were not surprised. The article in the paper was a deliberate smear to discredit the National Front. At no time did the Police regard the fire in the house as anything other than attempt by its occupants (well known to the local force), to obtain preferential housing.

Bristol NF chairman John Daniels writing in the excellent local branch newsletter told his members "This incident has reinforced our views of the ■ Bristol East NF candidate is Ian Anderson. The predictable smear campaign against him has badly backfired!

Evening Post. They are a paper that has an extreme bias towards the Labour party. We will look for no favours from them in the future and none will be given".

TVS Fails to 'Set-Up' the Front

TELEVISION SOUTH, the Southampton-based TV company tried to provoke an incident to live up their report about the National Front.

TVS are producing a programme on the NF and were in Eastbourne to film NF papersellers in the town on September 29th. Hardly had the sale started, when a well-dressed woman rushed up and grabbed some papers and ran off. The camera crew were in the exact position to film the incident but were disappointed when the NF sellers just laughed at the woman's action. Five minutes later the same thing happen just when the crew had started filming again.

Local activist Darren Copeland said "It was a set-up. We have sold here for the last five years and it's never happened before. The Election Agent briefed us to expect something like this when the cameras were filming so we were ready and waiting".

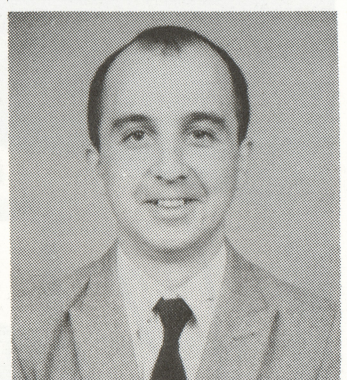

GENERAL ELECTION: CONSTITUENCY No. 12 TORBAY.

WEST COUNTRY CANDIDATE SELECTED

ROBERT JONES, has been adopted by the Torbay and South Devon Branch of the National Front to contest the Torbay Parliamentary seat at the next General Election.

Robert (Bob) Jones, a 34 year-old electrician from Birmingham, has links with the South Devon branch going back to the late seventies and was selected from a short-list of three which included two local candidates.

• ROBERT JONES: NF Prospective Parliamentary Candidate for Torbay

It was Bob's vast experience within Nationalist politics that swung the vote, experience gained when he served on the NF Directorate in the early 1980s.

The campaign in Torbay has already started with local NF Agent Mark Cotterill already preparing the ground work.

Tories Join NF Campaign

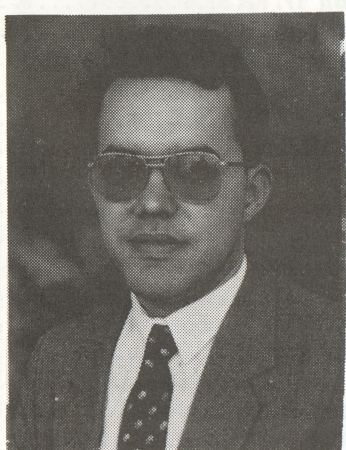

TORY AND Ulster Unionist MPs have lent their support to a campaign by North London Regional Organiser, Paul Nash, to get Gerry Adams's autobiography removed from booksellers, W.H. Smiths.

A letter of support has been received from Alan Clark Teddy Taylor informed Paul that he was already in dispute with Smiths over the literature they sell.

Nicholas Winterton said he would act if asked to do so by Ulster Unionist, the Rev Martin Smythe, and two other Tory MPs have said they will raise the subject when parliament is recalled.

Ulster Unionist, Peter Robinson, has been as helpful as always and forwarded a copy of a letter he received from W.H. Smith's where they claim that Wood Green is the only one of their shops stocking the book and that they have only ordered 4 copies.

Well done to Paul Nash and North London National Front, and well done to those MPs who supported the NF campaign.

• PAUL NASH: Enlisted support of both Tory and Ulster Unionist MPs in his campaign against Gerry Adams's book.

PLAYING FIELDS NOT A CONCRETE JUNGLE

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD National Front are supporting moves to turn Jarman Fields in Dacorum into a sports centre and playing fields.

At present Jarman Fields is common land, but development is destined to take place with council options favouring a concrete housing estate.

In a leaflet to local residents Hemel Hempstead National Front urged them to voice their support for a Sport Centre and playing fields. Entitled 'Yes to Sport, No to a Concrete Jungle', the leaflet said, "Local people do not want a Concrete Jungle infested with pollution, litter, vandalism and disturbances in the neighbouring streets every weekend from the disco and fast food outlets. Dacorum needs more sports facilities not only for us, but our children, and our children's children."

Hemel Hempstead NF are putting themselves on the local community scene with the Jarman Fields issue. It will no doubt put them in good stead when Hemel Hempstead is fought at the next General Election.

Getting involved in local issues is the backbone of National Front electioneering in the community.

Birmingham Booming

THE BIRMINGHAM Branch of the National Front made headlines in local papers with the formation of a new NF unit for South Birmingham.

"NF Membership Rocketed" was the headline in the Birmingham Chronicle of 6th September with the ensuing article reporting concern by Jewish leaders at the growth of the Front in the City.

NF Chairman, Ian Anderson was extensively quoted in the article and also reassured the Jewish Community "Any NF members involved in anti-Semitic activities will be suspended immediately and subsequently expelled from the Party".

NATIONAL FRONT
ANNUAL CONFERENCE 1990
IMPERIAL HOTEL
LONDON
SATURDAY
22nd SEPTEMBER
ATTENDANCE:
170 DELEGATES
COLLECTION:
£1,400.00

RIGHT:-Conference
Chairman,
John McAuley (right)
and NF Chairman, Ian Anderson.

"We can't have all the hard work done by our members and all the money donated by our supporters wasted because of the antics of people who are nothing whatsoever to do with the National Front" - Ian Anderson.

Cranks & Loonies PROSCRIBED!

by Martin Wingfield

"BUT THEY'RE all good nationalists" was a phrase continually heard in National Front circles during the eighties. Time and time again NF members could be heard making excuses for cranks and loonies of other 'nationalist'(sic) movements who had gained bad publicity and ended smearing the National Front.

Well it's a phrase that won't be heard in the Nineties!

At their 1990 Annual Conference, National Front delegates from all over Britain voted overwhelmingly to proscribe from the National Front anyone holding dual membership, helping with activities or giving financial support to a variety of organisations. The message was very clear to the those whose preferences range from wearing jackboots to dressing up in sheets with holes in them. - We don't want anything to do with you.

NF Chairman, Ian Anderson told Conference that the National Front was beginning to make a real impact on the British political scene. To increase that impact the Party was making a massive investment in contesting the next General Election. Not far short of £100,000 was being used to finance up to 60 NF candidates. It would be a dereliction of duty to everyone connected with the Party if the Directorate of the NF allowed the election effort to be interfered with because of the antics of tiny groups who only survive because they feed off the Party.

Within hours of the resolution being passed by Conference one North London NF activist had already been suspended because of his association with the British National Party.

Just seven days later the NF again reaped the reward of taking a firm stance on the subject at the Conference.

NF Chairman, Ian Anderson was being interviewed for TVS by journalist Selina Smith. The interviewer thought she had Mr Anderson on the rack over his claims that the NF were now taking their image seriously.

"How can you claim to be a democratic British political party Mr. Anderson" Miss Smith could hardly contain her smirks as she thought she had the NF Chairman cold. "When the NF is in merger talks with the BNP a party that believes totally in dictatorship".

You can imagine Ian Anderson's satisfaction, and Miss Smith's discomfort, as he told her of the National Front Conference resolution.

Violence: No Hiding Place

IN THE week that saw the announcement of record crime figures, with violent crime up a shocking 7%, Dagenham in Essex saw a Hungerford-style shooting.

Father of four Patrick Allen was shot at point blank range. The killer shot him in the stomach and then again in the face. Mr Allen who lived next door to the gunman, died instantly.

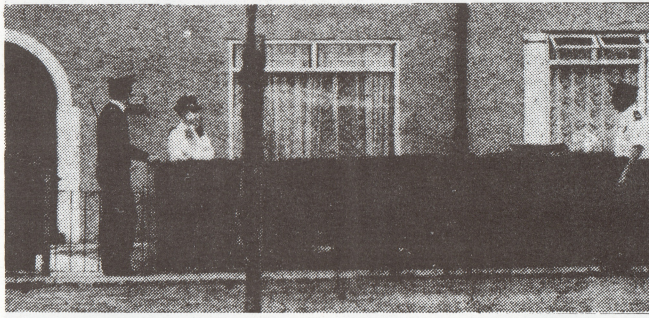

The gunman went back into his house and came out armed with two more guns. He fired a volley of shots into another house in the road and let off a hail of bullets at residents who had come out of their houses to see what was happening.

The man then got into his car and screeched off along the street firing at passers-by as he went. He was finally stopped and arrested by Police in Ilford.

Mr Allen and his family had moved from the East End to Dagenham to get away from violence and give his children a better future. He was well respected in the neighbourhood.

Mr Allen was a victim of the violence he had sought to get away from. It was initially a mystery as to why reports of the killing and the shooting at by-standers was ignored by the national media, it was only when Muhamed Khan appeared at Barking Magistrates Court charged with murder and attempted murder that all became clear.

Ted Budden Special: Crime in the City All About Self-Regulation And Forward Planning

I WAS SHOCKED and saddened to read the allegation by Chief Supt. Ronald Friend, former head of the City Unit of the Serious Fraud Office, that the ageing armed robbers of the 1960's have turned their attention to organising fraud in the City of London.

You see I've always had a sneaking regard for our yeoman criminal class; so staunch and straightforward in their nefarious exploits; so daring and skilled in the use of the simple tools of their trade - the cosh, the pickaxe handle and the sawn-off shotgun. I've rather looked upon them as Robin Hoods - well, robbing hoods anyway.

To think that this fine body of men have become so depraved as to be prepared to rub shoulders with Madam Thatcher's thieving fat friends in the City fills me with horror. I regard it as conclusive proof of the totality of Britain's moral decline.

Moreover, are they villainous enough for the really big-time criminality they'll encounter in the City and do they understand the complex rules that govern the City underworld?

For instance, there is, in the City, something called self-regulation. Now when your average armed robber in the street is on the job, he just grabs everything he can lay hands on and makes his getaway. City gents don't make getaways. They've got to stay put for the crimes they've got planned for years ahead. This requires self-regulation which means that nobody steals so much at any one time that it becomes noticeable.

Of course even the really big-time operators in the City underworld occasionally overstep the mark and embarrass Madam Thatcher to such an extent that the villains are actually prosecuted. This requires what is known in the City as "forward planning", which means that your aspiring villain makes large contributions to charities such as the Police Benevolent Fund and the Tory Party.

This will probably earn him a knighthood and stand him in good stead later.

Forward planning also involves silencing inconvenient witnesses. Whereas your average armed robber will dispose of the witness by sending round the boys with a chain saw, this simply will not do in the City where dismembered stockbrokers have been known to invite adverse comment. City villains silence witnesses by giving them share options which implicate them and shut them up as effectively as sawing their heads off.

• JACK LYONS: Full marks for forward planning but bottom of the class in self-regulation.

Of course sentences for City crime are so much lighter than those for armed robbery, as Chief Supt. Friend has pointed out. City villains, or entrepreneurs as they are laughingly called, can steal sums that make the Great Train Robbers look like piggy bank pilferers and get no more than a light slap on the wrist as opposed to the thirty years the train robbers got.

However, to get a light sentence, image presentation is all-important. Whereas your common or garden armed robber, about to get his thirty years, will simply stand and stare defiantly at the judge; your sophisticated City bandit, liable to five years, will suddenly cry out "Oy, Oy", clutch his chest, and fall in a heap on the floor. This will knock two years off his sentence. His lawyer will then point out that prison would kill him and cite his donations to the aforementioned charities as proof of his innate decency. This will knock off another couple of years, leaving only one. Two thirds remission for good behaviour; compassionate week-ends at home; a rehabilitation programme involving being taken from the open prison in a chauffeur-driven Black Maria four days a week to work in the City and there's not much left.

All of which leads the basically decent armed robber to suppose that City crime is pretty cushy and tempts him to sink to the level of Madam Thatcher's friends.

But it's not that easy. To operate in the big league with the top City criminals, armed robbers must realise there's a savage price to be paid. Not only must they sacrifice their scruples, they'll have to be circumcised.

Silent Front

THERE WAS a report in the 'Daily Mail' that revealed that the authorities organising the 'Last Night at the Proms' were concerned that the National Front might try to hijack the occasion to whip up a warmongering feeling in view of the Gulf Crisis.

Never has there been a story so far from the truth.

During the Falklands War the National Front were at the forefront of all demonstrations supporting the Government's action, and we were the most vociferous in condemning the appeasers of Argentina. Today we are silent, and speaking personally if a 'Stop the War' march passed by my house I would probably go out and join it.

The Gulf Crisis is nothing to do with us. It is an Arab problem and the Arabs must solve it. The Iraqi invasion is not a threat to democracy. There is no democracy in Kuwait. The tiny enclave is the personal property of the Al Sabah family. It is no concern of Britain which bunch of Arabs has which bit of the Middle East.

Britain must of course get the British hostages out of Iraq, but this should be done by negotiation as the French have done so successfully. The employment of British troops in the Gulf is madness.

America does have interests in the Gulf and are involving themselves in the dispute. There are those who say we must support the American campaign because they are Britain's special friend. But that special friend didn't support us in the Falklands because, quite rightly, it wasn't their dispute. Hence we should not support them in the Gulf because it is not our dispute.

If one British life is lost fighting Iraqi troops to defend the personal wealth of the Al Sabah family it is the responsibility of Mrs Thatcher and every MP in Westminster who voted to support the deployment of our troops. It is then they will have to answer to the British people.

Welsh Wisdom?

OF COURSE all NF members were rubbing their hands when Neil Kinnock announced that he had changed his mind on proportional representation, and cited the National Front as the reason for it. In just one sentence the Labour leader had attached great importance to our party, much more importance than our present popularity at the polls would probably merit.

But Kinnock isn't being as daft as he seems. Proportional representation would give the NF a 'squeak' at an election, because all those people who don't vote for us now because we can't win would, initially at least, give us their support. Just getting one MP elected would completely change the way the majority of British people view our party.

But that's not Kinnock's real worry. He has changed the Labour Party. Survey after survey now reveals that the Labour Party is more of a yuppie party than it was, and is aiming its policies to recruit the upwardly mobile type of voter. As such it is moving away from its working class base and is bound to lose some of that support. At present Kinnock knows these people will just stop voting rather than supporting the Tories or Liberal Democrats.

The British working class are the natural supporters of the National Front. Give the National Front a chance at the polls and they will be lining up in their droves to vote for our pro-British policies.

Neil Kinnock knows this and that is why he is so frightened of the National Front.

Walsall NF Stops the Pleasant Mead NIGHTMARE!

PRESSURE FROM Walsall National Front got results to relieve the nightmare existence of residents living in Pleasant Mead flats in Aldridge, Walsall.

Walsall Council had been inundated with complaints about all-night parties, drugs and prostitutes in the council-owned flats but, because of the sensitive race relations in the area, had done nothing about it.

When local residents contacted the local NF branch, organiser Duane Marlow took immediate action. He told council officials in no uncertain terms that unless the council took steps to stop the disturbances the National Front would take it upon themselves ensure a better quality of life for the people of Pleasant Mead.

Within a matter of days of Mr Marlow's ultimatum a 24 hour warden had been appointed for the flats and a clean up of the whole block ordered with refurbishment work designed to solve the problem of the empty flats.

Councillor Tom Ansell, chairman of Aldridge South planning committee denied that the problem in the flats was a racial one. He told Walsall newspapers that "It's just like any other part of the town where people indulge in anti-social behaviour".

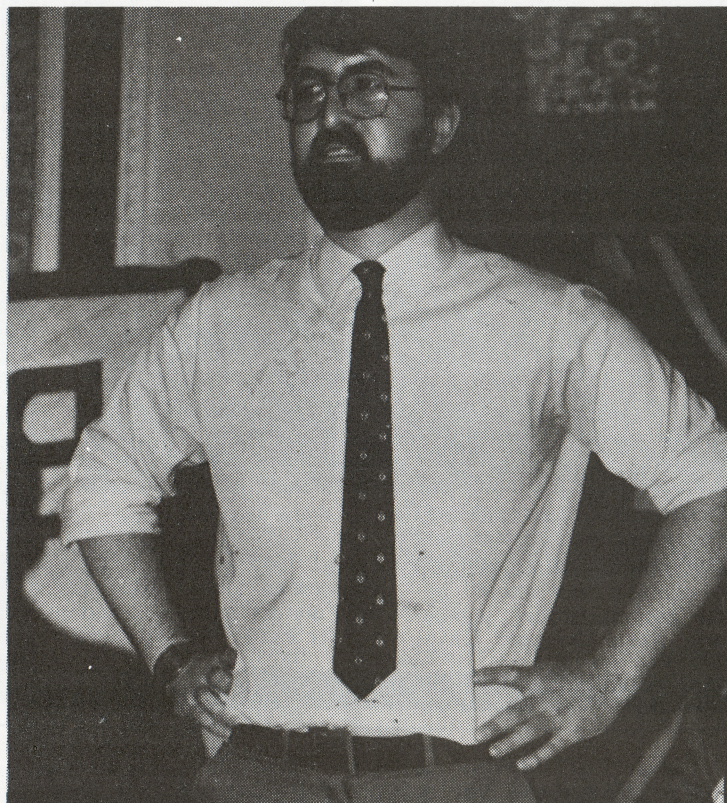

ASIANS ONLY

16 FLATS and a day centre have been built in Walsall, but they will only be let to Asian pensioners.

Community relations officer Ajit Rana said, "Aged Asian people are a separate group in their own right. The law allows for positive discrimination in their favour".

Housing manager, Margo Lambert said the Asians have special needs. "Many cannot speak English and have special diet and washing habits".

Walsall National Front says "Put the British people FIRST in housing, jobs and welfare".

■ CONGRATULATIONS TO Steve Brady on his election to the position of Deputy Chairman of the National Front. If anyone deserved such recognition it's Steve who has worked tirelessly promoting the Party as a member of its governing body, the National Directorate, since 1986. October will see the publication of Steve Brady's new book 'The Roots of the British' about the history and anthropology of the British people.

Brady Elected NF Deputy-Chairman

AT THE first meeting of the 1990/91 National Directorate of the National Front on 16th September, Ian Anderson was re-elected as Chairman while Steve Brady took over the position of Deputy Chairman from Martin Wingfield.

SUCCESSFUL

Steve Brady remains as Chairman of the Policy Department while Martin will be concentrating his time and energies on the increasingly successful and rapidly expanding NF newspaper The FLAG.

John Hill has taken on the additional responsibility of Branch Liaison Officer on top of his role as National Activities Organiser. Joining these three on the Executive Council are John McAuley (Home Counties North), Dean Thomas (Croydon) and John Lord (Dudley).

Other changes include the moving of publicity materials from the South Coast into London as part of the preparations for the acquisition of a central Head Office building. The new membership computer will not be moving into London and will be permanently kept separate from the Head Office, both for security reasons and also as part of the decentralisation of administrative functions to prevent the Party from getting 'bogged down' by having an over-burdened Head Office.

EFFICIENT

The cost of administration is also being kept to a minimum by these changes, while ensuring that branches and members are still offered a quick and efficient service for dealing with memberships and the supply of publicity materials.

SINKING LOCAL ROOTS

BILLS PAID on time, papers ordered punctually and a near 100% membership renewal rate. Great Yarmouth NF have been efficient as ever during 1990.

Branch Organiser, Tom Holmes regularly promotes his local branch and keeps The FLAG Newsdesk well serviced with his press releases.

But it's not only the NF that holds Tom Holmes in high esteem. He is well respected in Great Yarmouth, not least by the local newspapers who, although they might not agree with all he says, give him a fair crack of the whip in getting NF policy onto their pages.

A person doesn't win the respect of the local media overnight, and Tom Holmes has built up his reputation and that of the local branch of the National Front by his responsible attitude and his consistency - nearly 20 years as local NF representative!

Tom's latest publicity coup is to get his monthly meetings publicised in his local paper's Town Diary column - not many branches can boast of that!

Sinking local roots is how Tom Holmes has promoted the NF in Great Yarmouth. It's a long hard process, but the public response, when it comes, is very rewarding.

Brothers in Arms

IT IS a little peculiar, is it not, that those forces lined up to compel Iraq to obey the U.N. and quit Kuwait include Syria, a dictatorship, former official threat to the civilised world, host to international terrorists, and the invader of Lebanon.

Also on the side of democracy and the American way of life are Turkey, which invaded Cyprus and still holds half of it despite being ordered to quit by the U.N.; Israel, which bombs whomsoever it chooses, which has seized part of Jordan, part of Lebanon and the Gaza strip and ignores every U.N. order to quit; plus the absolute monarchies of Saudi Arabia and Morocco who make no concession to democracy whatever.

The permanent members of the U.N. Security Council include, of course, China whose response to democracy and whose invasion of Tibet attained levels of brutality that make Iraq seem like a liberal paradise.

In spite of all this, the crescendo of cant and the hail of humbug continue unabated. We are told that it is an action by "the world community", whatever that is, and the beginning of a "New World Order". It is this last phrase that makes my flesh creep.

Fifty years ago, I recall, a "New Order" resulted in the deaths of scores of millions of people.

The United States, so most Americans fondly believe, was founded on opposition to monarchy and dedicated to the rights of the common man. We all know, of course, that this is an hilarious myth; the roots of the American Revolution being founded in the resentment of the slave-owning American gentry at being treated like uncouth country cousins by the British gentry.

Still, most Americans believe the myth so one wonders how they square it with the declared aim of the U.S. Government to restore Kuwait's vast wealth to the sole control of the Al Sabah family and to ensure that the absolutism of the Al Saud family in Saudi Arabia remains unimpaired. Perhaps they hope that the Al Sabahs will, in future, blow their millions in the casinos of Las Vegas rather than those of London.

The U.S. has, after all, already used its influence with Saudi Arabia to induce it to cancel its multi-billion pound defence deal with Britain; the new contractor, of course, being the good old U.S. of A.

Again we kiss America's backside while America farts in our face.

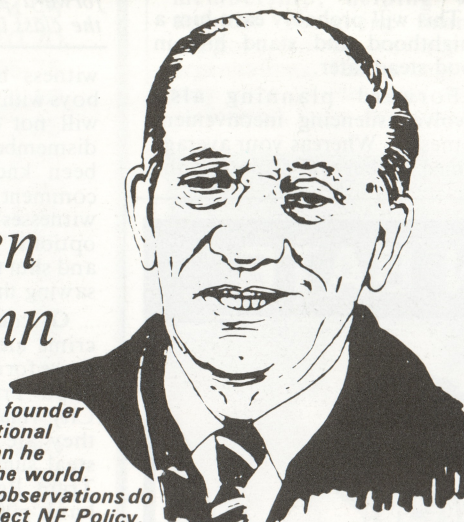

The U.N. is, of course, a sour joke. It is, and always has been, America's creature. It is based in New York and America is the major contributor to its funds. The U.S. keeps the U.N. in order simply by being several years in arrears with those contributions and if the U.N., being stoney broke, did not toe America's line then America would refuse to pay up. All those fat phoney diplomats and the U.N.'s teeming hordes of permanent employees would lose their fat tax-free salaries and have to go back to work. They are all very keen on the "New Order".

Hard to believe that a country with a budget deficit of $250 billion and a trade deficit of $125 billion, namely the U.S.A., should be able to engage in economic blackmail, but since the collapse of the ramshackle Soviet Empire America's threats have become more strident, its demands more arrogant.

Since the removal of the Soviet counterbalance, America's appetite for interference in the internal affairs of other countries has become insatiable. Who is next in line to be threatened in furtherance of America's "New order", I wonder?

Britain, over N.Ireland or over some future repatriation of coloured immigrants?

As the days go by, the Racial Nationalist nightmare of a world run by bankers and policed by American multi-racial bully boys comes closer to realisation. That prospect makes the era of the Cold War seem more and more like a vanished Golden Age.

No Man's Land

I SEE that Madam Thatcher has been off on her travels again - this time a grand tour of Europe designed, no doubt, to bolster her delusions of grandeur by posturing as an international statesman second only to dear President Bush.

Czechoslovakia one day; Switzerland the next; dammit the woman is never still. Perhaps she has taken to heart the maxim of the old-time music hall artists; 'If your act stinks, keep moving'.

Nobody, of course, begrudges the Madwoman of Downing Street her overseas jaunts; in fact most people would like her to go abroad and stay there. For my part I had high hope that while in Switzerland, the home of many excellent psychiatric clinics, she might be seized by keen-eyed strong men in white coats. But no such luck!

For the pestilential woman not only cannot stop travelling, she can't stop talking either. At every stop she gives forth with a flood of portentous drivel about the Thatcher master plan for Europe or Her policies on aspects of government that are properly the concern of the ministers she appointed and consistently ignores.

Why just the other day the Bank of England was forced to spend a couple of billions to shore up the pound after an off the cuff remark by the appalling Thatcher had sent it plunging into the basement. Well that's the price of Thatcherism but it's only money!

When it comes to human lives, however, that's quite another matter. God knows how many more lives will be forfeited because of her idiotic description of the IRA as "guerillas at war with Britain". Gorillas they may be; Irish gangsters they certainly are; guerillas they are not. What a boost this conceited looselipped woman has given to the morale of the murdering psychos; what a tonic for their warped egos. Why, if they're ever captured they'll claim to be prisoners of war under the Thatcher Convention.

Cannot some member of the Cabinet tell her to belt up? But then that's the problem. To ensure her continued domination she has surrounded herself with only the most complaisant and timid wimps. There is not a real man among the pack of 'em. The Cabinet is a no man's land.

Phoney War Phoney Warriors

I READ that Madam Thatcher has apologised to Czechoslovakia for Britain's failure to rush to the aid of that country when it was invaded by Germany in 1938. Had we done so we would have been well and truly walloped of course and a cynic might be tempted to ask why her sense of shame didn't compel her to volunteer for war service like other girls of her age. However, she talks a good fight and manages a fair simulation of steely determination and an iron resolve to defeat the enemy no matter what the cost.

I also read, just lately, banner headlines in the papers that threaten "Government Plans New Crackdown on IRA!"

For more than twenty years now I've been reading headlines like that and for more than twenty years the IRA has remained remarkably uncracked down on or even mildly inconvenienced.

Far from it, in fact. IRA atrocities are now so frequent and so impudent and so apparently immune from reprisals that one wonders if there has not been a slight case of role reversal with the security forces being hunted by the IRA.

Certainly the casualty rate among the security forces is far higher than among the IRA hoodlums. The brutal crimes of the IRA, such as the kidnapping and cold-blooded murder of the unarmed RUC constable Louis Robinson, go unavenged and are soon forgotten. Let a soldier, however, loose off a few rounds at the IRA and there is a public enquiry and allegations of a "shoot to kill" policy.

If IRA thugs are accidentally caught and imprisoned there is an instant campaign to free them by the media, by Labour M.P.'s with Irish names, and by the Government of Eire, a country that is every year permitted to export 40,000 of its unemployed and unemployable citizens to Britain. Many of these, no doubt, are IRA members or supporters who are only too happy to contribute something to IRA funds from the social security benefits so lavishly bestowed on them by the British taxpayer.

Money is collected for the IRA in London pubs and on London building sites. IRA papers are sold openly on the streets of London. Where is this "crackdown" I keep reading about? The only crackdown I've observed is on supporters of the National Front for threatening "public order" by opposing the IRA on the streets.

Isn't it odd that the British Government is prepared to commit a large force to the Gulf, where Britain has no vital interests, to confront Iraq's million strong veteran army yet has neither the will nor the guts to flush out a relatively tiny band of IRA ruffians from a province of the United Kingdom?

The war against the IRA is, after all, only a phoney war fought by phoney warriors.

• THE SIZE OF ISRAEL: David Williams believes the Arabs are to blame.

Arabs to Blame for the Size of Israel

I WAS interested to read the NF's stance concerning the Gulf Crisis in the September issue of The FLAG. Whilst I agree wholeheartedly that our forces should not be drawn into this conflict if it can be avoided, I feel that I must take issue on two points of detail.

1. I would have thought that it is more likely that the military build-up would cause Iraq to take hostages rather than the sanctions - (can the authors offer any evidence?) - which are surely just an additional lever to "persuade" Saddam to withdraw.

2. The article speaks of "Israel's continuous military expansion" - in fact, the expansion took place firstly in 1948, secondly 19 years later in 1967, (apart from a temporary occupation of Sinai in 1957 when Israel took advantage of the British and French attack on Nasser's Egypt when he seized the Suez Canal). It hardly can be called 'continuous'. Also, the blatant aggression of Iraq upon Kuwait without provocation is not, in my view, a true parallel with the Israel/Arab conflict.

When, on 14th May 1948, the U.N took over our Palestine Mandate and proclaimed a rather loose group of areas as 'Israel', the response of Syria, Jordan, Lebanon & Egypt was to invade the very next day and shell Jerusalem, but the Israeli army repelled the invasion (despite trouble with the treacherous Irgun gang) and established defensible borders.

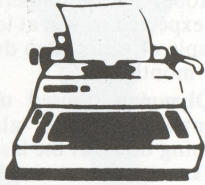

In 1967, Nasser provoked further conflict by closing the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping and laying mines. Again Syria, Iraq, Jordan and Lebanon attacked, but once more the Israeli army were victorious, pushing the enemy back so that the civilian population was out of range of the shelling.

Thus we see that the Arabs are much to blame for the present size of Israel (which in fact has contracted, not expanded, since 1967 with the return of Sinai to Egypt and withdrawal from Southern Lebanon).

What, however, cannot be disputed is that after 23 years it is high time that Israel withdrew from most occupied territory and some land exchange with Egypt was arranged to eliminate the geographical absurdity known as the Gaza Strip.

What Does the BBC Mean by Culture?

THE BBC described the Notting Hill Carnival as a 'cultural highlight' and were pleased to report that there were only 113 arrests for drugs and theft offences.

At the same time a similar carnival was going on in the Chapeltown district of north Leeds, and your readers may be interested to read a letter from September's Police Review.

The correspondent ends his letter with the words "The end result was not just two sleepless nights for thousands, but one person hacked to death with a machete and two others murdered in a shooting".

I wonder if that is what the BBC means by culture?

Some carnival!

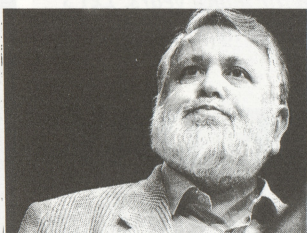

ONCE AGAIN, as a resident of Chapeltown division in north Leeds, along with thousands of other people I was treated to deafening 'music' into the early hours throughout the Bank Holiday weekend, while gangs of youths roamed at will around residential areas in what was described as a Caribbean carnival.

'It's just the local community enjoying themselves,' I hear many a community involvement unit 'policeman' say. The end result was not just two sleepless nights for thousands, but one person hacked to death with a machete and two others murdered in a shooting.

An Opportunity that mustn't be missed!

IT made my blood boil when I read about the millions of Asian Muslims living in Britain who want to create a non-territorial Islamic State within the British Isles and their plans to set up a two-tier parliament in London where representatives elected by Muslims will meet to debate the Islamic Laws of our country!

• SADIQUI: An Islamic State

Details of the proposed parliament first mooted in July as part of a Muslim Manifesto have been debated since by radical Muslim groups and were made public during September.

They are now pledging support for Iraq in the event of a war with Britain.

Has Maggie Thatcher gone out of her head to allow this to happen.

What an opportunity to start mass deportations back to their places of origin for all these Muslims who cannot abide by our country's laws, yet help themselves to all the benefits of British society.

Brilliant Disguises!

UNBELIEVABLE! It's as though your own eyes are deceiving you!

That Nelson Mandela is a genius. He saw through the brilliant make-up and disguises and revealed it all for everyone to see!

Yes the Black violence in South Africa's townships isn't Black against Black. It's Whites dressed up as Blacks trying to provoke trouble.

Old Nelson told journalists "The ANC is convinced that White extremists wearing black masks are responsible for much of the violence".

And the liberal Western press believe him!

They Are Squeezing us Out!

LIKE the Jews coming from the Soviet Union are displacing the Arabs from their land, (now called Israel), so the New Commonwealth people, who enter this country are displacing the 'natives' of Britain from their land, (still called Britain!)

With the White, Christian inhabitants of the planet outnumbered by these New Commonwealth friends, any open door immigration policy by a Tory, Labour or Liberal Democrat Government would result in an uncontrollable surge in coloured immigration into this country.

Every effort must be made to expose their particularly insufferable manifestos.

In the Americas and Australia, after all, the original natives of those lands were displaced by us, because we were more in number and had a higher technological aptitude. Yet what is happening in Britain today is that we are being squeezed out of our own country because we are giving the immigrants every assistance to carry out our own destruction!

• ETHNIC GROVELLING: Eight out of ten for Burnley's Mayor Pat Bennett.

Ethnic Groveller of the Year

I WOULD like to nominate Burnley's Mayor, Councillor Pat Bennett for the award for the 'Ethnic Groveller of the Year'.

During September she was guest of honour at the Pakistani Women's Association's Pakistan Independence Day celebrations. Not only did she sit for hours through plays she didn't understand a word of, and listen to songs and poems in a variety of Asian languages, but she also changed her clothes sitting through the whole shindig in a shocking pink sari.

I call that ethnic grovelling par excellence and should secure Pat a seat on one of the first planes off to Pakistan when the NF gets to power... sari and all!

Kick Her Out!

BRITAIN does not need the likes of pop singer Sinead O'Connor.

She has admitted on numerous occasions that she supports the IRA and all that they stand for.

Misconceptions Brushed Aside

I WOULD like to congratulate The FLAG's staff on an excellent publication.

Before reading the September issue, I expected to find it full of fanatical propaganda more likely to be associated with adolescent extremists. Instead I was pleased to see it contained opinions and reports on a variety of pertinent issues from a balanced and sensible viewpoint.

Hopefully old misconceptions can be brushed aside and a larger proportion of the population made, like myself, aware that the NF is a force to be reckoned with and has a genuine place at the forefront of British politics.

Excellent Editorial

TED Budden was spot on with his editorial in the September issue of The FLAG. Truth is always the first to suffer when hostilities are in the air and propaganda takes on any form required just to put a nation in a fighting mood.

In Canada we are being geed-up with anti-Iraqi propaganda in case America needs to call upon Canadian troops. But despite all the pro-American slants many Canadians want nothing to do with the conflict.

Of course the old enemy Adolf Hitler has been resurrected hopefully to instil a bit of 1939-45 war spirit in the population but a cartoon in the Buffalo Times last month explains why the whole campaign has fallen a bit flat.

Keep up the good work The FLAG is an excellent newspaper.

Words of Wisdom for Westminster and the NUJ

I ALWAYS enjoy reading the various quotations which appear in The FLAG from time to time.

May I submit the following, which in my opinion should be engraved above every portal in Westminster:

Lords and Commons of England, consider what nation it is whereof ye are and whereof ye are the governors.

The remainder of the quotation, too lengthy for carving in stone over doorways, goes on...

... a nation not slow and dull, but of a quick, ingenious and piercing spirit, acute to invent, subtle and sinewy to discourse, not beneath the highest that human capacity can soar to.

Those words were penned by John Milton (1608-1674) whose Paradise Lost is one of the masterpieces of English literature. In addition to being a poet Milton was a political activist, and the quotation comes from his pamphlet 'Areopagitica' which advocated, would you believe, freedom of the press!

Maybe the words should also be carved over the headquarters of the National Union of Journalists.

T.V. Review

A Nationalist Appraisal by Sean Irwin

WATCHING TELEVISION often makes me wonder if the people who rule the air-waves are evil, misguided, or just plain stupid.

When they're not pushing poofs and perversion, they are busy promoting the dubious benefits of race-mixing and multi-culturalism. (Although it goes without saying that you don't find many of these over-paid telly bosses actually living in multi-cultural areas).

Usually their 'anti-racist' propaganda is swallowed without question. But occasionally, in their haste to turn this country into a multi-racial melting pot, they overstep the mark and even some TV critics sit up and take notice.

BBC2's recent series, Ain't No Black In The Union Jack, is a case in point. It purported to examine Britain's race record 25 years after the introduction of the notorious Race Relations Act.

But the mood of the first episode was so clearly prejudiced against whites that even the Daily Express critic Compton Miller was moved to protest!

Centering on race relations disputes, the programme used the real blacks but hired actors to play their white bosses and workmates. The actors inevitably made the white responses sound shifty.

Protested Miller: "In each case a fair-minded viewer might have wondered how much their (the blacks) bad treatment was due less to the colour of their skin than their personality and attitude to work."

Daily Telegraph critic Richard Last was similarly irritated by the BBC's anti-white bias.

The second episode also backfired badly. It set out to report on race violence in the London borough of Tower Hamlets as seen through the eyes of a real Cockney and a Bengali immigrant.

The arrogant Bengali talked of "white bastards". A white youth was shown whose back had been savagely mutilated by machete-wielding Asians.

Street scenes from Wapping were broadcast showing how this part of the East End has been made into Little Bangladesh - totally unrecognisable.

I ended up being rather glad the programme had been shown. It must have brought home the insanity that is mass immigration to hundreds of thousands of decent British viewers!

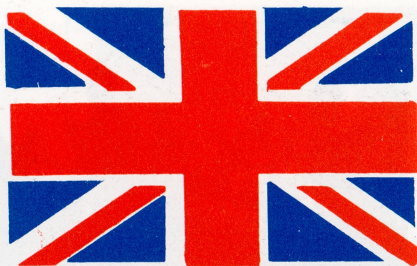

THE ROW over the Last Night of The Proms resurrected that old lefty chestnut about Land Of Hope And Glory - the idea that Sir Edward Elgar himself disapproved of A.C. Benson's lyrics.

This propaganda lie was first put about by Ken Russell in his infamous film on the great composer's life, which was an early example of TV "faction" - i.e. bits of fact and fiction mixed to suit the prejudices of the film maker.

(Russell is also to blame for the widespread idea that Mozart was a foul-mouthed poltroon in a badly fitting wig!)

Meanwhile, although I was glad the BBC sacked wet conductor Mark Elder for wanting to drop our great patriotic anthems from the Proms, as a Nationalist I must ask: who do we think we're kidding?

Have you listened to the words of Land Of Hope & Glory recently? 'Wider still and wider shall thy bounds be set, God who made thee mighty, make thee mightier yet...' Come on! The words have become a mockery. Our bounds have been getting steadily narrower, our governments weaker. Sadly, the Proms push a memory. A mighty one, but still just a memory.

Reaping More Than Solitary Rewards

The FLAG's selections for October are all jumpers and all expected to win at least a couple of times each during the month.

Olympian cruised up at Fontwell despite almost coming down at the last and looks set for a sequence. Solitary Reaper is only a selling hurdler at best, but in his class he'll take some beating and looks certain to quickly follow-up his Stratford success.

Peristyle makes up the trio to follow, but remember to keep following Philip Hobbs's horses. Firm going kept them out of action during September but they will be out with a vengeance during October.

Bravefoot Doping Scandal is the Final Insult!

• DICK HERN: His horse Bravefoot was doped just 20 minutes before the race.

THE BIGGEST JOKE about the whole disgraceful affair of the doping of racehorses Bravefoot and Norwich at Doncaster during September is that the National Association of Bookmakers are offering a reward for information leading to the arrest of those responsible.

If that gesture wasn't so insulting to the racing public, it would be amusing. The only people to benefit from the nobbling of the two horses were the bookmakers, so you don't have to be Sherlock Holmes to work out who did the nobbling.

John McCririck, of Channel Four racing blew the gaff on the bookmakers before Bravefoot had even run. In the ring before the race he told bemused viewers, "Bravefoot can't win. There is fortunes for him but the bookmakers keep knocking the price out. The bookies know something is up with Bravefoot".

How right he was. Bravefoot trailed in last and was always in distress. Hundreds of thousands of pounds went into bookmakers' satchels that day because of a massive fraud organised by one, or a cartel of bookmakers.

The bookmakers not only had the motive for the doping of Bravefoot and Norwich, they were at the scene of the crime and acting in a very suspicious manner.

The FLAG for the last four years has called for the betting industry to be nationalised - in other words a Tote Monopoly. Not only would such a move bring a massive £2.75 billion a year into Government coffers it would also ensure that all of racing, from the owners, through better prize money, and the stable lads, through better wages, got a proper return for their efforts.

In France and Australia £200 and £220 million respectively are put back into racing from their Tote Monopolies. In Britain the bookmakers put back a paltry £45 million, less than 1% of the betting turnover.

A National Front Government would call time on Britain's bookmakers. For years they have ripped-off the punters and for years they have fiddled billions out of the Government through undeclared wagers.

The whole fraudulent mire has now reached the last straw with the direct thieving of money from those punters who bet on Norwich and Bravefoot.

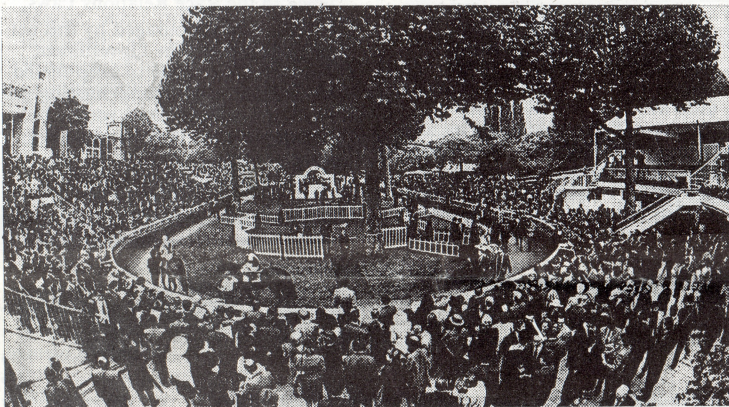

Bookmakers are taking the piss when they offer a reward for the capture of the dopers. What they should be doing is paying back money to all those backed Bravefoot and lost their money because of a disgraceful swindle.

HOW THEY DID IT

Bravefoot and Norwich were doped with a drug called Acetylpromazine (ACP) which was administered by a nasal spray just 20 minutes prior to the race.

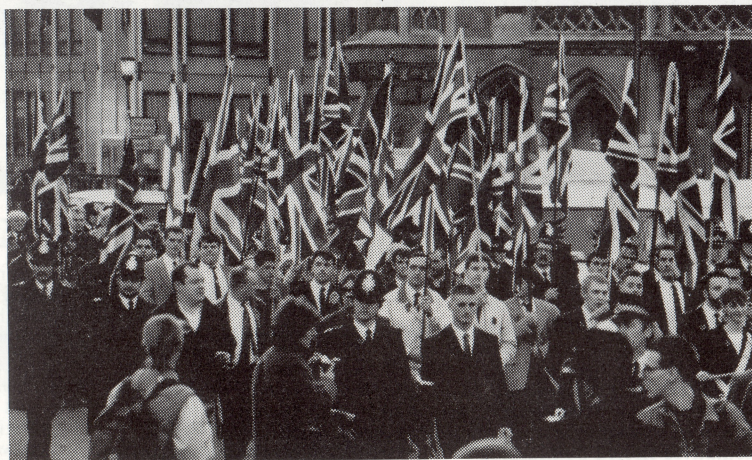

The drug is a sedative and generally makes the horse feel out of salts.

Who administered it is another question. It must be someone who had access to the horse just prior to the race. Maybe a member of the stable's staff, in hock to a bookmaker and doing a favour to wipe the slate clean?

• IN FRANCE: There is a Tote Monopoly. As well as the punters getting a fairer deal and the Government receiving a massive revenue, more than £200 million is put back into French racing.
